

Introduction

The Sacramento Region Databook is a demographic and economic survey of the six-county Sacramento Region, including El Dorado, Placer, Sacramento, Sutter, Yolo, and Yuba Counties. The Databook is designed as a resource for companies interested in relocating to, establishing, expanding, or investing in the Region.

Topics and data covered within this publication include an overview of the Region's Demographics, Business Climate & Workforce, Education, Infrastructure, Real Estate, and Quality of Life. The directory provides contact details for various public agencies, media organizations, colleges/universities, public school districts, cultural entities, hospitals, transportation, and utilities within the Sacramento Region.

The Region is home to California's capital city, Sacramento, which is situated at the confluence of the American and Sacramento Rivers, located in the north-central portion of the state. This central location provides convenient access through major highways and freeways to other large metropolitan areas including San Francisco (87 miles west), Reno, Nevada (135 miles northwest), and Los Angeles (385 miles southwest).

The entire six-county Sacramento Region is surrounded by 11 California counties and two Nevada counties and covers a land area of 6,328 square miles (4.1 percent of the state's total area).

Sacramento originated with Captain John Sutter's settlement of the colony in 1839, granted by permission of the Mexican government (the ruling entity at the time). Founded in 1849, the City of Sacramento is the oldest chartered city in California and soon thereafter, in 1854, became the state capital.

The discovery of gold in the Sierra Foothills attracted a flood of migrants to the Region. The burgeoning population included entrepreneurs that originally served the miners' needs, but later supported the Region's growing economy. Today, the Sacramento Region boasts a diversified economy with traditional and innovative economic activity that provides stability and growth to the market. Many companies, including those originating from the San Francisco Bay Area, out-of-state, and abroad, relocate to or establish in the Sacramento Region for various reasons such as its quality of life and workforce. All of these factors, and more, contribute to the pattern of development experienced in the Sacramento Region.

The Northern California Economic Regions consist of the Sacramento Region and neighboring San Francisco Region.

The Sacramento Region consists of El Dorado, Placer, Sacramento, Sutter, Yolo and Yuba Counties.

Demographics

Over the past ten years, the total population of the six-county Sacramento Region has increased to almost 2.2 million people, a growth of 25 percent (more than nine percent above California's rate of growth). An average of roughly 70 percent of the Region's annual population growth over the past five years can be attributed to net migration (the balance of people moving to and out of the Sacramento Region from within the United States, incoming foreign immigrants, and people moving out of the Region to live abroad). The population's ethnicity has become increasingly diverse and the age segments with the highest representation of the total population were in the 10 to 19 and 40 to 49 ranges.

A demographic measure that determines how many people are located within an area during normal business hours due to the population's residence or work location is called daytime population. In 2000, the Sacramento Region counties with the highest change between resident population and daytime population due to employment and commuting patterns were Yolo County with a seven percent change in population and Sacramento County with over one percent change.

With the population growth experienced in the Sacramento Region, the number of housing units naturally follows that increase. Total housing units in the Sacramento Region increased by nearly 22 percent to almost 830,000 units in the last 10 years, doubling California's percentage change in the same time period.

Per capita income in the Region (almost $31,000 in 2003) has followed a similar trend as the state over the past ten years at about 48 percent growth.

This section offers data that demonstrate the continuous development of the Sacramento Region. Current and historical data show how the Region has grown in terms of number of people, housing units, and personal and household income. The topics covered in this section include total population, daytime population, net migration, population composition (age and ethnicity), population projections, housing units, households, and income.

Business Climate and Workforce

Total employment has also had significant increases – total non-farm employment in the Sacramento Region has increased over 32 percent since 1994 to almost 900,000 jobs. With a 39 percent increase from 1994 to 2004, the private sector has grown twice as fast as the public sector (17 percent five-year growth) and accounts for 74 percent of total employment. At 5.4 percent, the unemployment rate in the Sacramento Region is lower than California's rate of 6.2 percent.

The Government sector is the largest industry sector in the Sacramento Region in terms of employment (232,000 employees in 2004 or 26 percent of the total industry employment). Second and third largest are the Trade, Transportation & Utilities and Professional & Business Services industry sectors comprising 17 and 11 percent of employment, respectively. Over the past 10 years, at 132 percent and 43 percent, Construction and Professional & Business Services demonstrated the highest rates of growth. Some major employers in the Sacramento Region include Kaiser Permanente, Sutter Health, Raley's/Bel Air, Intel Corporation, and UC Davis Medical Center.

Almost 21 percent of employment by occupation is within the Office & Administrative Support Occupations category. Other categories with a large proportion of employment include Sales & Related Occupations and Food Preparation & Serving Related Occupations.

The Sacramento Region's taxable sales, an indicator of business activity, has increased almost 28 percent from 1999 to 2003, with most sales originating from the All Other Outlets (30 percent) and Auto Dealers & Auto Supplies (21 percent) business types.

The topics covered within this section include current, historical, and projected employment (total and by major industry and occupation sectors), major employers, labor force data, average wages, and taxable sales. Employment, major manufacturers and processors, recently located companies projections are from Sacramento Area Council of Governments (SACOG) and the Center for Continuing Study of the California Economy (CCSCE).

Education

The Sacramento Region has 687 schools and an enrollment of 392,000 students within the K–12 system. The most recent data of high school graduation rates shows that at 85 percent, the Sacramento Region has a similar graduation rate to the state. In terms of SAT scores, the Sacramento Region averages higher than California with a total average score of 1034 for the 2004–2005 school year in comparison to 1015 for the state.

About 26 percent of the Sacramento Region population aged 25 years and over in the year 2000 held a Bachelor's degree or higher level of education. The Region has a varied offering of public and private postsecondary institutions, including University of California, Davis and California State University, Sacramento as the major four-year universities (with about 30,000 students each in the 2003–2004 school year) and eight community colleges.

This section provides an overview of K–12 and postsecondary education in the Sacramento Region, including K–12 enrollment by school type, high school graduation rates, SAT scores, educational attainment, as well as higher education institution enrollment and degrees granted.

Infrastructure

A developed and accessible transportation network is essential to a metropolitan area's success. The Sacramento Region boasts such a network made up of interstate freeways, transcontinental railways, a cargo port, and an international airport. In addition to transportation networks, public transportation availability, utilities, and hospitals all contribute to the quality of a region's physical and social infrastructure.

With 14 major carriers, the Sacramento International Airport provides direct and connecting flights to major domestic and international destinations. The airport has seen impressive growth — from 1999 to 2004, the number of passengers and air freight (in pounds) have increased almost 27 percent each.

There are four major public transportation systems in the Region, including Sacramento Regional Transit (RT), Tahoe Area Regional Transit (TART), Yuba-Sutter Transit, and YoloBus. In fiscal year 2004–2005, the largest public transportation system, Sacramento RT, served over 18 million bus passengers and almost 13 million light rail passengers.

The City of Sacramento has embarked on a venture to design and develop the Sacramento Intermodal Transportation Facility Project (SITF). The facility will be a “state of the art” transportation center in downtown

Sacramento that will serve as a regional hub, transfer point, and portal. It will meet the long-term functional and operational needs for passenger rail, light rail, bus services, bicyclists, pedestrians, taxicabs, and automobiles. In addition, other rail operations will be included at the site, including Union Pacific Railroad (UP) freight line service, State Railroad Museum rail car movements, and future high speed rail.

The SITF is envisioned as a regional destination and gateway to the City. It will integrate retail, commercial and entertainment development, and transportation services. The facility will link the regional and local transportation networks and connect directly with adjacent districts, including the Central Business District, Old Sacramento, the Riverfront, Alkali Flat, and the Railyards. The facility is also viewed as a landmark destination and includes the historic Southern Pacific Railroad (SP) depot.

Electricity in the Sacramento Region is provided by three utilities: Pacific Gas & Electric (PG&E), Sacramento Municipal Utility District (SMUD), and Roseville Electric. In addition to electricity, PG&E also provides natural gas to the entire Sacramento Region. There are many water and wastewater service providers in the Region — most of which are operated at the city or county level and a few operated through investor or publicly-owned utilities.

Health care services are an important part of a region's social infrastructure. The Sacramento Region has 20 acute care hospitals with a total of about 4,000 beds (according to the Office of Statewide Health Planning and Development data). The largest hospitals are operated by the University of California, Davis Medical Center, Sutter Health, Catholic Healthcare West (CHW)/Mercy Healthcare, and Kaiser Permanente.

The Infrastructure section includes data to provide a better understanding of the Region's transportation network (including average commuting times, airport passenger and cargo totals, port information, and public transportation statistics), utility providers and rates.

Real Estate

The Sacramento Region's commercial real estate market has seen notable growth over the past five years with an increase of almost 19 percent of office inventory and 10 percent of industrial inventory (in terms of square footage). According to Colliers International, the Sacramento office market (which includes areas in the six-county Sacramento Region) has a total of almost 68 million square feet in the second quarter of 2005 and almost 1.7 million square feet under construction. In the same time period, the Region's industrial market's total inventory included almost 157 million square feet (with over 4,700 buildings) and over 942,000 square feet under construction.

Vacancy rates and net absorption have shown improvements in the second quarter of 2005 in comparison to previous years in the same quarter. Vacancy rates, although currently higher than five years ago, have begun to decline and net absorption for both markets is at high levels demonstrating that the amount of space vacated is significantly over the amount of office and industrial space vacated.

There has also been notable activity in Sacramento's housing market over the past several years. According to the California Association of REALTORS®, the Sacramento market's median home price in June 2005 was $394,450, still lower than California's overall median home price of $568,890.

This section of the Databook provides current and historical commercial real estate data for the office and industrial markets in the Sacramento Region. This data, provided by Colliers International, includes vacancy rates, net absorption, and average lease rates. Also included within this section is an overview of the Region's housing prices and affordability.

Quality of Life

The Sacramento Region appeals to diverse interests and provides a superior quality of life. Counties and cities within the Region have a strong sense of community loyalty, founded on cultural, historical, and geographical ties. Recreational activities, professional sports, and cultural events are abundant and available to all who live in and visit the area. Combined with a mild climate where weather very rarely disrupts daily activities, the Sacramento Region is an entertaining and convenient place to work and live in.

Scenery in the Region is spectacular. The San Joaquin Delta, valley agriculture, the grasslands, the gold country, the cosmopolitan downtown area, and the Sierra Nevada Mountains contribute to the beauty of the Sacramento Area. Rivers, lakes, national parks, and ski resorts are also found in the Region. Residents can easily leave the action of the city behind for the solitude of nearby waterways and mountains. The fact that residents of the Region enjoy a rich and diverse quality of life is underwritten by a lifestyle survey that depicts residents as camping/hiking, snow skiing, bicycling, wine tasting and gourmet cooking enthusiasts.

Weather

Warm, dry days and cool nights characterize the summer months in the Sacramento Region. During the summer, the temperature averages 93 degrees during the day to a comfortable 57 degrees at night. Winter temperatures typically range from 43 to 58 degrees. Because of the shielding influence of the high mountains that surround the Sacramento Valley, winter storms are generally subdued before reaching the area. However, significant rain and snowfall occur on the western Sierra Nevada slopes. The rainy season in the Sacramento Region occurs between November and April. Thunderstorms are few in number and usually mild in character, occurring mainly in the spring. Fog occurs on occasion throughout the valley in winter.

Prevailing winds in the Sacramento Region are southerly every month, except November when they are northerly. This is due to the north-south direction of the valley and the deflecting effect of the Sierra Nevada Mountain Range and the prevailing oceanic winds. These winds enter the valley through the San Francisco Bay's Carquinez Straits at the junction of the San Francisco and San Joaquin Rivers. As a result of a prevailing ocean breeze, summer nights in the lower Sacramento Valley are, with few exceptions, cool and invigorating.

Ground Stability

The Sacramento Region is noted for its geological stability. Unlike the San Francisco Bay and Los Angeles Areas that have high levels of seismic activity, the Sacramento Region ranks among the lowest in the state for the probability of a major earthquake.

Several regions in the San Francisco Bay and Los Angeles Areas experience serious damage such as hardened home fixtures cracking, pipes breaking, and structures shifting off of foundations during a major earthquake. In contrast, the Sacramento Region is expected to experience minimal shaking. For example, the area was unaffected by the 1989 Loma Prieta (San Francisco Bay Area) earthquake that measured 7.1 on the Richter scale. Professional geological reports documenting the area's ground stability are available from the Sacramento Area Commerce and Trade Organization (SACTO).

Geological stability was an important relocation factor, due to their delicate computer operations, for firms such as Intel Corporation, Raging Wire, Hewlett-Packard, Apple Computer, NEC Electronics, Franklin Resources, Inc., as well as many other "mission critical" information and data storage systems for many other major corporations.

Culture and Entertainment

Whether its history or performing arts, churches or conventions, the zoo or gourmet food, the Sacramento Region offers a wide selection of cultural activities and entertainment.

The Sacramento Region's geographical location and its role in state and national politics give it a rich historical heritage. The Gold Rush, Pony Express, the western terminus of the first transcontinental railroad, and the State Capitol each add a chapter to the history of the area. Some of the more prominent historical attractions in the Sacramento Region include:

B.F. Hastings Building	Golden State Museum
California Military Museum	Historic Governor's Mansion
California State Archives	Historic Old Auburn

California State Indian Museum	Historic Sutter Street, Folsom
California State Library	Historical City Cemetery
California State Railroad Museum	Leland Stanford Mansion
California Vietnam Veteran's Memorial	Locke Historic District
Capitol Park Arboretum	McClellan Aviation Museum
Central Pacific Passenger Station	Old Sacramento Historic District
Crocker Mansion and Art Museum	Sutter's Fort
Discovery Museum	Towe Auto Museum
Discovery Museum Learning Center	Wells Fargo History Museum
Eagle Theater

The Sacramento Region offers a wide range of performing and visual arts. Performing arts and entertainment include:

B Street Theater	Sacramento Opera
Broadway Playhouse	Sacramento Repertory Theater
Camellia Symphony	Sacramento Theater Company
Chautauqua Playhouse	Sleep Train Amphitheatre
Music Circus, Presented by Wells Fargo	The Robert and Margrit Mondavi Center for the Performing Arts
Sacramento Ballet	Sacramento Choral Society
Sacramento Choral Society	The Studio Theater
Sacramento City College Actor's Theater	Theatre El Dorado
Sacramento Community Center Theater	Yuba/Sutter Symphony Orchestra
The California Musical Theatre	Woodland Opera House Theatre
Sacramento Men's Chorus

Sacramento Regional Research Institute, December 2005

The California Musical Theatre, producer of the Music Circus and Broadway Series, sells over 200,000 tickets each year for its combination of summer stock in-the-round musical theater and touring companies of recent Broadway hits.

Numerous small playhouses, theaters, colleges, and universities stage a variety of productions during the year. The Sacramento Region's resident professional theatre group, the Sacramento Theater Company, offers the ultimate theatre experience, presenting classics as well as new works.

One of the Sacramento Region's premier choral groups, the Sacramento Men's Chorus, performs numerous concerts each year, both locally and throughout the United States. The Sacramento Ballet is a professional ballet company that performs at the Community Center Theater. The Sacramento Ballet is renowned for the artistic quality of both classical and contemporary works. It reaches more than 17,000 school children each year through the educational outreach program DANCEPOWER!, which has expanded to include non-English speaking and physically challenged youth.

The Crocker Art Museum, the University of California, Davis, and California State University, Sacramento provide a variety of visual arts exhibits and programs. Both universities enjoy national reputations for their diversified professional arts programs. The community supports both local and national artists through a network of private galleries, such as the La Raza Galeria Posada, The Art Foundry, Solomon Dubnick Gallery, Exploding Head Gallery, and many more. On the second Saturday of every month, over 45 art galleries in the Sacramento area have receptions and remain open into the evening for fans of art. The famous Crocker Art Museum, founded in 1885, is the oldest continuous art museum in the west. A Victorian mansion with a contemporary wing, the Crocker's collection includes fine examples of early California painting, Old Master's drawings, European Art, international ceramics, and contemporary Northern California art. The museum is host to several international traveling exhibitions each year. Activities include Third Thursday Jazz Series and Saturday Hands-On Art Activities. The Towe Auto Museum, located along the banks of the Sacramento River, shows a series of exhibits built around Dream Themes, including The Dream of Luxury, The Dream of Speed, and The Dream of Cool, and much more. The Golden State Museum draws upon the vast collections of the California State Archives, which include 120 million documents, artifacts, and audio visual materials.

Shopping in the Sacramento Region is a popular diversion for residents and visitors alike. Several major malls and shopping centers serve the region, with such respected tenants as Nordstrom, Macy's, JCPenney, and Gottschalks. The Westfield's Downtown Plaza, located in downtown Sacramento, has approximately one million square feet of shopping and entertainment facilities, including a seven screen Century Theatre Complex. There are two other major malls of similar size including Arden Fair Mall and Westfield's Galleria at Roseville.

Residents have a wide variety of dining options, as the Sacramento Region is known for its international varieties of foods and gourmet restaurants. The Region offers an abundance of theme and specialty restaurants, and several nationally recognized hotels. The hotels and motels in the area offer meeting and conference facilities that accommodate small group seminars as well as large scale conventions and trade shows.

In 1996, the downtown Sacramento Convention Center underwent an $80 million expansion that tripled its size. The 385,000 square foot facility features 31 meeting rooms, approximately 140,000 square feet of ground floor exhibit space, and a 24,500 square foot ballroom located on the upper floor. The Sacramento Convention Center is graced with $1 million in public art, and has elegant pre-function areas and a rooftop garden terrace. In addition to permanent seating for 2,452 in the performing arts theater, the exhibit hall can accommodate 6,500 guests.

The Memorial Auditorium is a historical landmark. It opened in 1927 and reopened in 1996 after extensive renovation. The auditorium is a 3,800 multi-use arena and performing arts venue.

Opened in 2002, the 1,800 seat Mondavi Center on the University of California, Davis, campus is one of the premier performing arts centers on the west coast. It touts state-of-the-art acoustic design and features world-class entertainment.

Cal Expo is comprised of 780 acres (380 developed and 400 undeveloped). The facility is equipped with parking accommodations for 15,000 automobiles, including off-site parking. Cal Expo offers more than 200,000 square feet of exhibit and venue space, providing an excellent platform for a variety of exhibits, trade shows, and special events. The Cal Expo Sports and Wagering Center features live horse-racing and live satellite wagering on racing events throughout the United States.

Cal Expo is home to the California State Fair which brings in more than 900,000 visitors each year. The Fair features agriculture, livestock, fine art, and baking competitions, just to name a few. Some major attractions of the Fair are commercial vendors, livestock competitions, county exhibits, and the Magnificent Midway.

Each year, during the Memorial Day weekend, the Sacramento Traditional Jazz Society presents the Sacramento Jazz Jubilee — the world's largest traditional jazz festival. Over 150 bands from around the world and across the United States perform for approximately 100,000 attendees. The audience is split mainly between local residents and visitors, making the Jubilee a major local and tourist event. The Jubilee brings in $30 million, annually, to the local economy.

Sports and Recreation

Sports thrive in the Sacramento Region, due in large part to the climate, environment, and local support. The people of the Sacramento Region are proud to have three professional sports teams and an assortment of college teams. In 1985, Sacramento acquired its first professional sports team, the National Basketball Association's (NBA) Sacramento Kings. The Kings, now one of the most popular teams in the NBA, play to sell-out crowds of nearly 18,000 fans at ARCO Arena. In 1997, Sacramento became host to the Monarchs, a team in the newly formed Women's National Basketball Association (WNBA). The AAA Minor League baseball team, the Sacramento River Cats, started play in 2000 at Raley Field, one of the nicest minor league baseball stadiums in the United States. The newly built $30 million stadium has over 11,000 seats and 37 luxury suites.

Recreation also thrives in the Sacramento Region. The American River Parkway offers 5,000 acres of recreation area along both sides of the river for 30 miles. Access to bike trails, white water rafting, hiking and fishing is available at many points along the American River, from Folsom to Downtown Sacramento. Dozens of parks, some developed and others left in their natural state, are located throughout the Region. Baseball and softball diamonds, soccer fields, basketball and volleyball courts, over 45 golf courses, tennis courts, and swimming pools are available for sports enthusiasts.

Snow-skiing and snow-boarding are popular winter past-times of residents from the Sacramento Region. Most major ski resorts in the Sierra Nevada mountain range are within a two hour drive of downtown Sacramento. These include, but are not limited to, Squaw Valley, Northstar-at-Tahoe, Sugar Bowl, Boreal, Alpine Meadows, Heavenly, Homewood, Kirkwood, and Soda Springs.

The Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta has over 1,000 miles of waterways. The Delta is well known for its catfish, bass, and giant sturgeon fishing. The Sacramento River offers some of the finest salmon and large striped bass fishing. Varieties of game include grouse, duck, pheasant, dove, turkey and deer.

The Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta, the Sacramento Zoological Gardens, and the various botanical gardens and arboretums in the Sacramento Region are of interest to naturalists. The Delta has a unique mix of plant, aquatic, mammal, and bird life, and can be easily accessed by road and boat so many of the isolated ecosystems can be enjoyed.

The Sacramento Zoo, located in William Land Park, is home to more than 400 animals, including exotic mammals, birds, reptiles, and amphibians from around the world. The Zoo's collection represents 130 species, 32 of which are endangered or threatened. The Zoo's mission is to inspire appreciation, understanding and respect for all living things through stimulating education and innovative species management programs. Situated on 14 acres of lush botanical gardens, the Sacramento Zoo is rated as one of the best small zoos in the country.
